UA Cossatot has established procedures to ensure that employees behave in an ethical manner and adhere to the Statutes of the State of Arkansas, applicable federal statutes and regulations, rules and regulations as promulgated by the Department of Finance and Administration under the authority of such statutes, as applicable to all employees, and such regulations as issued by the State Board of Higher Education and its staff action on behalf of the State Board of Higher Education.

Faculty members are entitled to full freedom in research and in the publication of research results. Faculty members are entitled to freedom in the classroom in discussing the subject of the course, but should not teach material inappropriate or unrelated to the course, and should maintain a respectful and professional academic learning environment. Faculty are citizens, members of a learned profession, and members of an educational community. Speaking or writing as a citizen, faculty members are free from institutional censorship or discipline. However, as a person of learning and as a member of an educational community, faculty have a responsibility for awareness that the public may judge the profession and the institution by his or her utterances. Hence, faculty should at all times make an effort to be accurate, exercise good judgment and appropriate restraint, show respect for the opinions of others, and indicate that they are not spokespersons for the institution. Faculty members are expected to contribute to the productive and efficient operation of the instructional and work environment.
